A useful distinction in grammar is that of form and function. Grammatical form is concerned with the description of linguistic units in terms of what they are, and grammatical function is concerned with the description of what these linguistic units do. Note that we use capital letters at the beginning of function labels.

An infinitive is the uninflected form of a verb along with to —for example, to walk, to inflect, to split . A split infinitive is created by placing an adverb or adverbial phrase between the to and the verb—for example, to boldly go, to casually walk, to gently push . Although split infinitives have been widely condemned in grade-school classrooms, they're common in writing of all kinds.
